Demand Wikipedia to Dismiss Editors Suppressing UAP Phenomenon Information

Started

February 6, 2024

Why this petition matters

Started by Bea Anono

We call on Wikipedia.org to take immediate action against content editors who have knowingly distorted or eradicated information related to the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) phenomenon and its associated individuals. These editors, known as the 'Guerilla Skeptics', are perpetuating a discredited Cold War policy of denial and ridicule, which is fundamentally at odds with Wikipedia's mission of providing free access to the sum of all human knowledge. The implicated editors include LuckyLouie, Sgerbic, RP2006, JoJo Anthrax, Jjhake, Hob Gadling, Hemiauchenia, and Jusdafax. Their actions not only undermine the credibility of this globally recognized platform but also suppress truth-seeking efforts in an area gaining increasing attention from scientists and governments alike. A report by The New York Times in 2020 about U.S government's interest in UAPs shows that such phenomena deserve serious examination rather than dismissal or distortion. We urge Wikipedia.org to uphold its commitment towards unbiased dissemination of knowledge by removing these editors immediately. Sign this

There needs to be a class action defamation lawsuit to bring down this group and hold them to account to the full extent of the law. Defamation is a serious crime which can incur serious financial consequences.

Ok, Susan has got to stop her wiki followers from keeping accurate birthday dates a. S

Cont. : birthday dates and locations incorrectly stated on various target pages. The first two to rectify are journalist George Knapp (Pulitzer and Edward R. Murrow awardee) and retired soldier Lou Elizondo. I believe a firm statement to her legions would go a long way toward allowing the corrections be made downstream. Thanks, man, we all just want to get our facts straight. Any questions, please don't hesitate to ask.. thanks.

Yes, that's a good point. Gerbic has made a lot of enemies. But dehumanizing people can spiral out of control and have real world consequences that nobody wants. What she has done to others has created a lot of grief, and it is a lesson not to repeat that mistake.

could you explain how this article is something you would site on David Gursch wiki?

it seems it makes a connection to bigelow and david from the fact they are both in the government?

Thats a connection, but not a discredit, I am not sure that would disqualify the 2004 video evidence do you think you could explain how those UAPs can do a 90 degree turn without slowing?

They must be a break away civ at least because that requires the ability to manipulate gravity, or inertia.

When you add an article like that, that just make claims, when there is video evidence, its seems you are bias?

NIDS was studying Skinwalker ranch, which was scientist, studying what was going on at the Ranch, and had been for years

Colm Kellher, a scientist, in NIDS, on the study, wrote a book. I would like to discuss that with you and get you insight, as you must know more than wiki?

It seems a little like the Dunning-Kruger effect, where the least knowledgable, are the most confident in their views

Wikipedia Cabal / Afterlife Guardians

Hosted by George Knapp

Guests: Rob Heatherly, Ali Duncan, Stafford Betty

Sunday - February 25, 2024

About the show

First Half: A cabal of hardcore skeptics and UFO debunkers has surreptitiously seized control of hundreds of Wikipedia pages, including the online biographies of many of the most prominent UFO figures and investigators, including Robert Bigelow, Bob Lazar, and Coast to Coast's own George Knapp. The editors' slanted viewpoints, biased comments and dismissive opinions, and they block any attempts by others to correct blatant factual errors. The cabal rigorously excludes any information which is supportive of the targeted individuals or the UFO subject. This is a control of other Wikipedia topics and pages viewed by tens of millions of readers. How did this happen? A former US marine who runs the Military Witnesses to UAP YouTube channel, has discovered some of the cabal. He joins George Knapp to discuss what he's uncovered, along with Ali Duncan, who ran into the cabal when he tried to correct errors on George's wiki page. The guests will reveal specific abuses of the Wikipedia system and why it can't be trusted as an information source.

Why the fuck would anyone who is skeptical be against "disclosure"? The entire point of being skeptical is to attempt to find the truth, not to censor anything you don't like or agree with. If there is no truth around the NHI hypothesis than we can let it be discovered through investigation and application of the scientific method, not through manipulation, censoring, and slander.

I suspect it is GSoW up to their normal tricks.

The biggest surprise to me is how few people know about GSoW in this sub. Wikipedia is a terrible resource for any topics that the skeptics feel threatened by, the articles become negative junk and in some cases just attack pieces.

As a past skeptic that was involved on the fringes of the skeptic community, I became appalled by how dishonest and sleazy they were, then they would justify it by accusing others of doing what they were actually doing.

It still makes me laugh that the skeptic community adopted the exact same ugly tactics as Sciento. are known for.

This is an absolute scandal of organized character assassination attacking the people pushing for disclosure.

Luis Elizondo

This was one of the few pages I've written from scratch. I tend to like to "rescue" pages and leave the new pages creations to other editors. I follow the work of Mick West and the whole UFO/UAP and the U.S. Congress story is super interesting. I kept coming across the name of Luis (or Lue) Elizondo connected to the story. I went to Wikipedia to find out more information and was surprised to see that there wasn't a Wikipedia page. He was all over the main stream media, so I couldn't understand why not. I should have dug a little further, but just got started. It took me about ten hours straight to get the page written. I let the GSoW team review it and then on May 26, 2021, published it on Wikipedia.

↓ Before I even clicked the link I had a pretty good idea of who this was.

I once tried to fix the remote viewing page on Wikipedia and went as far to recruit the head of the Guerilla skeptics of wikipedia Susan Gerbic (yes it was so badly edited even a prominent skeptic temporarily supported me).

All my efforts were stonewalled by this user who incorrectly leveraged wiki legalese.

I stopped because after reading 'psi wars' by Craig Weller who has also been in the wiki fight I knew the most likely outcome was to get unfairly banned for trolling.

But I see this account every now and again on controversial topics doing a disservice to humanity with half-baked knowledge and poor discernment.

It looks like he's kicked a hornets nest now. And I will be buzzing with the rest.

Yes, isn't that interesting. One editor archived their own Talk Page Nov. 10th. Wonder why? 🤔

David's page was rolled into "David Grusch Claims" page by the same small half dirty dozen editors that actively monitor and control over 10k Wiki pages by page majority rule, including Lue Elizondo's page (I recognize the snark! 🤔), Ross Coulthart (stub, awful attacks 🤔), Tim Burchett, Bob Lazar, Jacques Vallee, George Knapp, Chris Mellon, Garry Nolan, Jeremy Corbell, Hal Puthoff. ALL UFO related pages, other bunk, pseudo science, religion, conspiracy theories, paranormal, COVID-19, Covid Lab leak "bunk", scroll to the bottom of each page (mobile view works better than PC) and follow the edits, check Talk for each page, and each editor. Let's figure out who LuckyLouie is, shall we? And his ardent attack dog JoJo Anthrax. There are others, but these two... Perhaps he was already banned from the platform for previous sock puppetry? I could be wrong, but I doubt it. Court of public opinion will decide. There are around 5 others of particular interest, that combined have dominated entire genres on Wikipedia for over 17 years now. We are all too credulous to decide what is credible information and make our own informed decisions. When spread out the active defamation of character towards the most prominent Disclosure Advocates, while blanket promoting liars including Kirkpatrick, across multiple social media websites, platforms inc YouTube, anyone who's fresh to any of the topics this group polices, are directly reading only the information this small group wants everyone to see, with highly biased articles that censor any single editors attempting to bring balance with opposing viewpoints from valid sources. Valid sources? They even decide which mainstream outlets deserve their stamp of approval or not. News Nation, The Debrief, Popular Science magazine, pure credulous bunk. Don't take my word for any of this. I actually encourage people to think for themselves, unlike those in this community for less than honorable reasons trying to manipulate and control the narrative. If the UFO conspiracy is true, then what about the rest? The truth is too dangerous for public consumption. Psyops Susan Gough must be so proud.

I'd say Wiki has an infestation and liability issue on hand they need to sort out. I was suppressed on my attempt to set the record straight. Perhaps others will have better luck...

↓ I'm not Wikimedia, I'm just a Wikipedia editor who made an account. I believe in UFO and I'm a and Grusch.

I want to validate what the video said up to a point. Yes -- there are some asshole skeptics on V and a lot of UFO believers too.

The edits I saw on the show weren't actually that problematic We always remove academic deg go look at ANY page. We always remove random podcast appearances. Awards weren't removed the Awards section. Talk pages aren't "secret", they're very very public. Talk page archives aren say in the video that Elizondo was born in texas, but I went and looked and I couldn't find any e the wiki article cites a news source that says he was born in Miami! Can you find a "reliable sou born in Texas? Edit: No, I can't just call Lue up and ask him where he was born. I'm just an and editor, not an investigative reporter, nobody is going to take my word for anything. Lue could en that would probably work.

Just remember, the skeptics don't run the show on Wikipedia. If you look at how the sausage ge look at the ENTIRE process. We use some asshole skeptics in the process, but we use a lot of ot of different biases.

Disclosure is NOT a battle that will be fought on Wikipedia -- it's a battle will be fought in the pa Times and the Washington Post. There's like four to ten hardcore skeptics on wikipedia, and the cross the line into blantly wrong edits. The second disclosure happens in mainstream source be overruled.

Experienced Wikipedia editors are discouraged from joining Guerilla Skepticism on Wikipedia because “they do not fit in well.”

Or maybe GSoW doesn't want editors with established credibility finding out what they're really up to and holding them accountable.

I'm an experienced Wikipedia editor, can I join GSoW and skip the training? No. We have found that experienced editors have a very different experience as a team like ours. Sounds like Guerilla Skepticism on Wikipedia are well aware that what they're doing could be problematic for their members' reputations down the line.

Pretty wild.

You should also know that there are rules that govern Wikipedia. GSoW follows those rules, we must be really careful as many of us are very public and we don't want something to come back and haunt us years later. So, we must be extra careful of the rules.
